

Titanic: What Lies Beneath

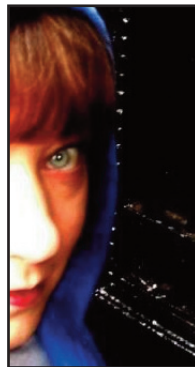

Sunday, April 15th at 2:00 p.m.

A Titanic Obsession--John D. Weaver

Ever since reading Walter Lord's classic narrative, A Night to Remember as a child, John Weaver has had an enduring fascination with the doomed White Star Liner. A long time member of the Titanic Historical Society, he will share personal insights – including treasured conversations with survivor Eva Hart and explorer Dr Robert D Ballard – from nearly 50 years of studying the disaster. Why was this “unsinkable” ship doomed from the start (and what role did premonition play)? Why was EJ Smith's – often seen as the heroic Captain who went down with his ship – reaction to the crisis in actuality a display of breakdown in command? What has the discovery of the wreck in 1985 done to enhance (and harm) the mystique of that “Night to Remember” 100 years ago?

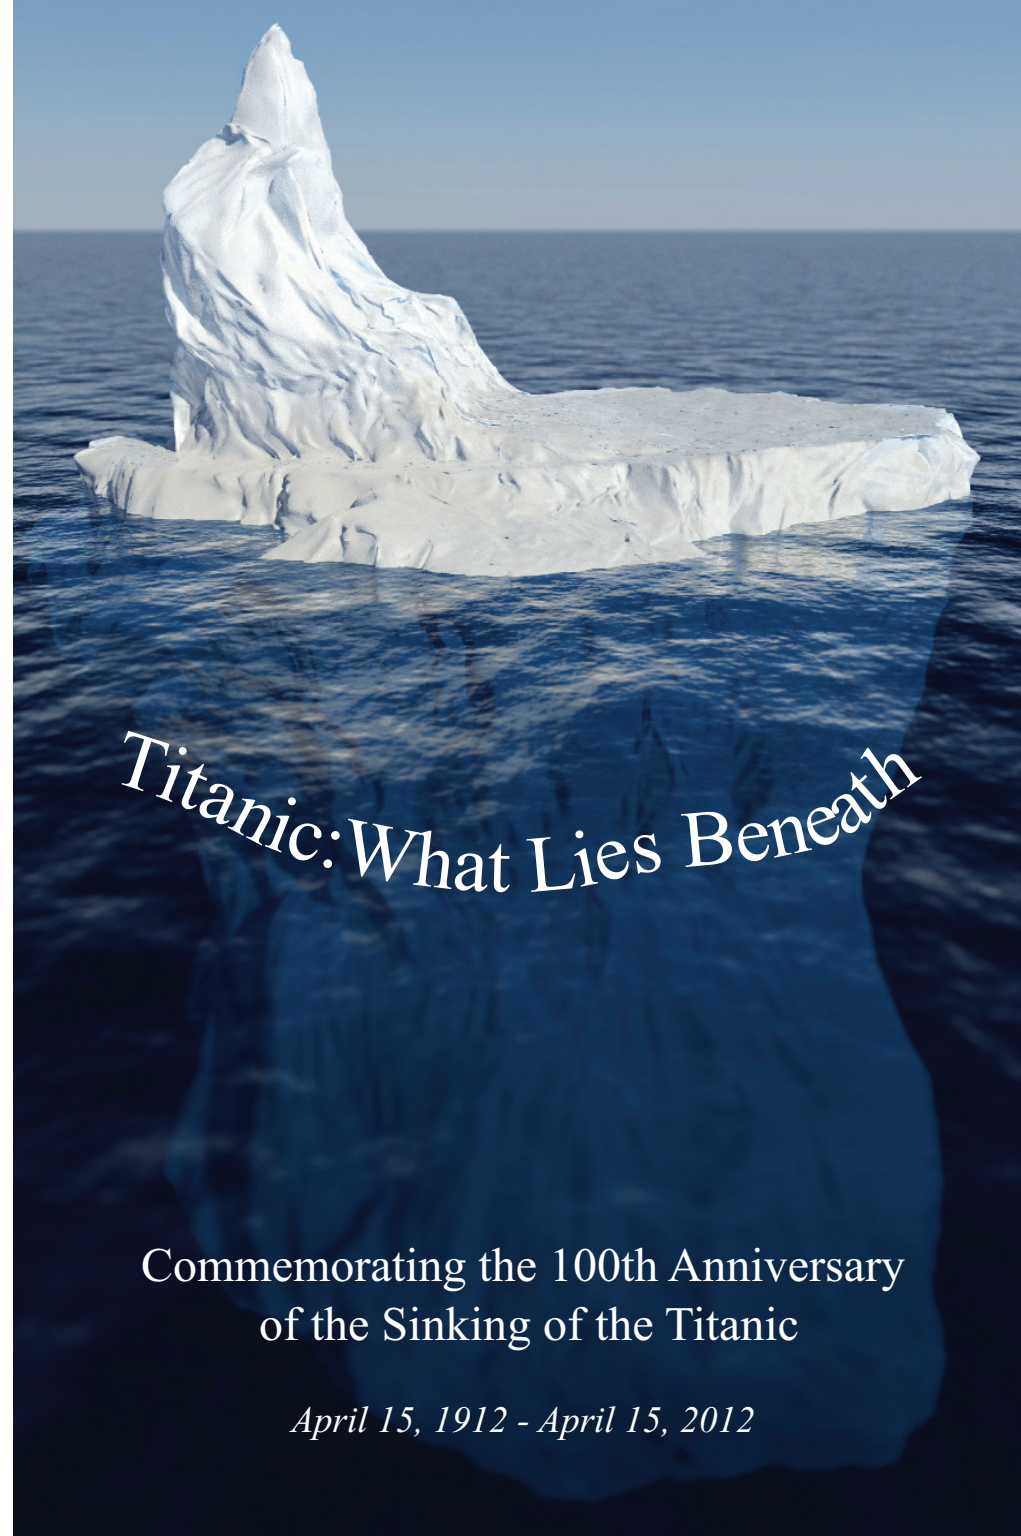

John Weaver is a native of Mechanicsburg and works as an Advertising/Marketing Director. He has a passion for history and the paranormal and is the co-founder of the Spirit Society of Pennsylvania and a Senior Field Investigator for the Mutual UFO Network.

People of Titanic & Their Stories--Melissa Telesha

The fascination with the Titanic disaster has many facets and conjures many strong feelings. Listen to some of the events that took place during the tragedy and learn more about a few of the passengers onboard the ocean liner and hear about their heroics, cowardice, lives and loss.

Melissa Telesha is a Co-Founder of Susquehanna Mysteries Alliance and the Events Director of the Spirit Society of Pennsylvania.
